 At-Risk students at Gogebic are first identified through the admissions process, academic skills assessments, direct staff contacts, self-identification at orientation, and through faculty referral. Supplemental intensive advising services are then provided, along with development of academic and career goals, and arrangements for specialized service opportunities including tutoring and accommodations for special learning needs. As the year progresses, faculty continue to make referrals and students are asked to meet with staff for identification/review of barriers to success, academic and/or counseling support, reassessment of course load, reestablishment of short and long term academic and career goals. At-Risk funding also provides individual and group peer tutoring in most subject areas on campus.

Accomplishments include an increased number of students enrolling in and completing our First Year Seminar, one credit course. Twelve student tutors served as supplemental instructors in developmental math classes, providing additional assistance during class time and offering weekly study sessions. Our data shows students enrolled in these sections had higher success rates. The Center for Student Success now offers PowerPath screenings to identify students who may experience difficulties with attention or visual stress. Once screened students received a personalized report outlining strategies to address their learning challenges. We hired an Alternative Text Coordinator who assisted students needing audio texts, helped them understand how to use eTexts, and other associated technologies. Due to the economy many students were unable to afford their textbooks. Consequently, we spearh ...

Students enrolling at KVCC are pre-tested using Compass. Counselors assist students in selecting courses based on their pretest scores. Transitional courses are offered as regular classes (12-15 weeks) and utilizing WIN and PLATO. Some transitional studies courses have in-class student advocates and/or tutors - connecting students directly with available resources. In addition to regular tutoring services, Mini-tutoring sessions are provided for basic skill development, time management, paper writing, note taking, and how to study. Weekly ESL chats are offered to allow students an opportunity to meet and converse.

Over the last year, all new students were assessed in basic skills using the ACT COMPASS program. We recently expanded this service to area high schools, so prospective students can take the assessments right at their high school. As a result of assessment testing, nearly 500 students took developmental courses in reading, writing, and mathematics; and many have moved on to regular college classes. Our task hasn't ended there. Once in those classes, these students, should they encounter problems, have access to several highly-qualified professional tutors. Continued At Risk funding has been essential to our efforts.

A significant portion of the At-Risk grant funds for 2008-09 academic year were used to update the College's interactive classroom. This classroom was created in 1994 to provide a mechanism for reaching students at various locations in Genesee County by connecting with the local Intermediate School District's Gennet System to broadcast instruction from Mott's main campus. Due to technical issues, the cost of upgrades and the speed in which the technology advanced, this room has not been in use for several years. With the assistance of the At-Risk grant, MCC has updated the technology in the ITV room to broadcast instruction taking place on main campus to its satellite campuses, allowing greater access to students within our service area.

The Developmental Studies Department completed its application for advanced-level certification through the National Association for Developmental Education. A new math sequence includes Arithmetic, Pre-Algebra, and Introductory Algebra with the goal of increasing success rates in Introductory Algebra. In addition, the department conducted an analysis of the placement validity of the Compass Writing cut-off scores as well as the Compass E-Write which scores writing samples for placement purposes. As a result, several changes in the cut scores used for writing placement will be implemented in the spring of 2010. Results show that students who start with developmental writing succeed in the first college writing class at rates comparable to those who place into college writing via ACT scores. Reading scores will be evaluated next.

During the 2008-2009 academic year WCCCD continued to provide students with workshops to increase their academic achievement (i.e. study skills, test-taking, stress management, etc.) in the Learning Centers at each campus. The online advising tool as well as the implementation of a Success Center provided students with increased opportunities to gain information about college programs and resources available. Faculty were provided training workshops on the use of Catalyst and Passport online programs for English and Reading courses to better enable them to assess and serve at-risk students. The college has also implemented the use of an Early Alert system for at-risk students to allow early intervention outreach.

3. Summary of Accomplishments (Limit of 10 lines) The At-Risk program at West Shore Community College (WSCC) consists of students enrolled in the Introduction to College Writing (ICW), Introduction to College Reading (ICR), College Learning Strategies (CLS), and Pre-Algebra (PA) courses. All full-time students, who fall below the ACT or COMPASS test minimums on the Writing, Reading and/or Numerical Skills assessments, must enroll in the respective courses (ICW, ICR and/or PA). Besides one-on-one counseling and advising on individual curriculums, an At-Risk Advisor conducts classroom visits in each section of the above courses during the semester to discuss college success strategies and encouragement. In addition, Educational Development Plans are established, we offer one-on-one and group tutoring and provide Faculty/Staff and Student Mentors.
